OUR PURRPOSE

AdventureCats.org wants to redefine what it means to be a cat — and a cat owner — through inspiring stories of thrill-seeking felines like Nanakuli, the one-eyed surfing cat; Quandary, the Rocky Mountain hiker; Georgie, the seafaring feline; and many more.

We are the only resource for information on how to safely explore the great outdoors with your feline friend. Through our website and social media channels, we provide helpful tips and how-to guides on topics including leash training, cat-hiking tips, essentials for camping with a cat, and how to determine if adventuring is right for your kitty.
OUR MISSION

The mission of AdventureCats.org is to challenge negative stereotypes about cats and cat ownership to increase cat adoptions.

More cats are euthanized in U.S. shelters — 1.4 million annually, according to the ASPCA — than dogs, and part of the reason that number is so high is because of how we perceive cats and their owners.

Last year, a survey found that the majority of people described cats as “moody” and “aloof” and that 49 percent of people still buy into the “crazy cat lady” stereotype.

We want to change this.
